Judge Blair Assesses Alice Stevens $100

For Violation Of Court's Restraining Order

Severance Of Marital Ties Sought By Woman

Will Of Lorain Benedict Admitted To Probate

Other Notes From The County Court House

In imposing a fine of $100 on Alice Stevens Friday, Judge Park B. Blair terminated an action which arose from all sorts of alleged "cussedness" on the part of the defendant.

The defendant was found guilty of contempt of court by Judge Blair, the action having the title of William Purdy, guardian, vs. Alice Stevens and dealt with a violation of an injunction issued some time since, restraining Mrs. Stevens from interfering with the acts of William Purdy as guardian.

The fine of $100 was suspended with the provision that the defendant cease her tactics which were very objectionable to Purdy and were in violation of the order of the court.

Wants Divorce—

Clarissa Shrimp vs. Samuel L. Shrimp is the title of an action for divorce. Plaintiff states she and defendant were married on February 12, 1907, and two children were born to the union. She charges defendant with gross neglect of duty and failure to support. She further alleges that defendant has been guilty of willful absence since September 30, 1910, selling all household goods at that time and taking proceeds with him. Since that time, she has been forced to live with her parents in Pike township. She asks for divorce, custody of minor children. Lot C. Stillwell represents her.

Will Admitted—

The will of Lorain Benedict has been admitted to probate. It was executed on May 18, 1915, in the presence of Emma Woolson and Lydia Ayers. By its terms, $200 is bequeathed to the Methodist Episcopal church of Gambier, and $100 each to Truman Secord, Minerva Jacobs and Mary Ayers, after the payment of funeral expenses. Minerva Jacobs and Mary Ayers are named executrices with no bond. They have been appointed and John Cunningham, William Carlisle and Harry Holmes have been named appraisers.

Injunction Sought—

Ada B. Shiveley has brought proceedings, seeking to enjoin Didamia R. Pipes and Alonzo Pipes from cutting down timber. She states she owns certain property, subject to the life estate of her mother, Didamia Pipes, and that defendants have cleared their land of valuable timber, depreciating greatly the value of the property. She asks that defendants be enjoined from further clearing and that the life estate of her mother be forfeited to her. J. B. Graham and P. A. Berry represent the plaintiff.

Sale Confirmed—

In the petition to sell real estate of Clinton M. Rice, guardian of Susie I. Hoover, vs. Susie I. Hoover, an order of sale has been returned and the same confirmed.

RING MASTER

CHOSEN FOR "Y." A CREDIT TO MANAGEMENT

The Y. M. C. A. circus is coming out with an announcement extraordinary when it gives to the public the fact that the ringmaster of the performances next Tuesday and Wednesday will be Thomas L. Bogardus. The management feels like receiving congratulations on securing so able a director of the various acts.

Circus is in the air everywhere up at the "Y." building. It is all you hear talked. It seems to fill all the waking hours of the boys and it is surmised that it may fill the dreams of some.

There is one act that will draw the attention of a great many people. The eleventh act will be a demonstration of the science of boxing by Frank Butler and Fred Glenn. This will be an opportunity to see two well qualified and experienced men display the various forms of attack and defense.

"WOODCRAFT" IN CITIES

How Much Do Town People Know About Their Environments?

(Florida Metropolis.)

City woodcraft sounds paradoxical until one accepts Mr. Ernest Thompson-Seton's definition of woodcraft as the adaptation of a man to his environment. He is trying to encourage city men to study their surroundings as woodsmen do, and to learn through their study to be resourceful in adapting themselves to the circumstances in which they live.

City folks settle too easily into routine and are notably unobservant of things around them. Can you name, in the correct order, the stores or business places on any one block of your town? Do you know how many kinds of trees there are in the block in which you live? Can you name the varieties and tell which is which?

How is your residence street paved? Why was it paved that way instead of some other way? Why are poplar trees bad for city streets?

How does your town dispose of its sewage? Its garbage? Is the disposal satisfactory? Is it economical or wasteful for the taxpayers?

If you had a fire in your house and the fire department was out of commission, how would you go to work to put it out? What ought you to save first, after the family? What would you do if your town were struck by a cyclone?

Why is a barber pole red and white? Who is your health officer? Why do you sprinkle ashes on ice? Why salt?

That's a starter. If you once begin to observe things in your walk about town and the neighboring country, you'll begin to find this "citycraft" as thrilling as any detective story, and quite as useful to yourself as the Indian's woodcraft is to him.

SLAYER TO DIE AT SING SING MONDAY

New York, April 22.—Joseph C. Haner, who was found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Julia Heilner, a wealthy widow in Brooklyn, will be electrocuted in Sing Sing prison Monday morning. Haner killed Mrs. Heilner on April 23, 1915, by striking her over the head with a bottle. He fled and the police did not get trace of him until February of this year, when he was arrested in Baltimore. Fingerprint prints on the bottle entered into the identification of the murderer. When brought face to face with this evidence, Haner confessed. He was tried in March and found guilty of first degree murder. Haner was employed by the wealthy widow as a butler.

J. M. Moto, deputy state inspector of weights and measures, spent Thursday and Friday with J. C. Tinkey, making arrangements for future work in the weights and measures department.

A SUFFRAGE TRIP

Two Ardent "Gists" Set Out Across the Continent.

WILL TOOL THEIR OWN CAR.

Armed Against Mosquitoes, Rattlesnakes, Mexicans and Hunger, Two Adventurous Women Start For California With a Small Auto.

No women have ever before made the trip just started by Mrs. Alice Sultzer Burke and Miss Nell Richardson of New York city. On April 6 they left Columbus Circle and were escorted to the Forty-second street ferry on their first lap to Trenton, N. J., by hosts of suffragists in automobiles. Before they see New York city again these women will have made a trip of 15,000 miles in a little car, so light it can be pushed about by hand. En route they will traverse twenty-five states, among them four on the Mexican border.

How to provide against mosquitoes in Jersey and rattlesnakes and Gila monsters in Arizona, hostile Mexicans on the Texas frontier and hunger everywhere will be among the problems of these errant ladies, who fear nothing at all, not even punctures.

Miss Richardson, who was born in Virginia and hails from Maryland, says she will solve the hunger problem by carrying a fireless cooker on the running board, and Mrs. Burke says she fears no accident, for she can put on her own tires and that without "getting myself dirty. I don't have to crawl out from under a car as black as my hat," she states.

She certainly looks immaculate enough in the picture. At the end of every day's long run there will be a suffrage speech given "somewhere in America" for the National Woman Suffrage association, and the occasions at which these will occur will take in all possible social groups and a variety of locations. The compact compartments of the suffrage car, in which the women are advised to carry "an ax for cutting firewood, a shovel to dig themselves out of mudholes, a pistol against rattlesnakes and a rope to tow some other unfortunate," will also carry evening and afternoon gowns for the speakers.

Mrs. Burke is a western woman, whose first husband, Captain Armstrong, was one of Roosevelt's "rough riders" in the Cuban war. She has a daughter, who was the center of a little story which Colonel Roosevelt called "the prettiest incident of his western trip" when he was in California during his presidency. At Captain Armstrong's death Mr. Roosevelt struck off a copy of a bronze medal and sent it home to the captain's daughter. Years afterward when he was riding in state through San Francisco's streets the president saw the little child standing on the curb wearing her medal, and he stopped the procession to lift the child into his car. "My little rough rider," he called her.

Suspect Now in Baltimore Jail, Held in Connection With the Million Dollar Mail Robbery On a New York Ferryboat—Prisoner Stoutly Declares He Picked Up Satchel On Train—Alleged Pal Indicted.

Baltimore, Md., April 22.—Postoffice inspectors went to Union Station looking for a man who had forged a money order. They did not find him, but, instead, stumbled into one of the biggest catches in years.

Instead of the forger, they picked up, almost wholly by accident, E. J. Quigley as he stepped from a train from New York, arrested him and found in a little black satchel $400,000 in securities stolen from a mail truck on a New York ferry boat in February. These securities are now in a vault in the postoffice. Quigley is in a cell in the Central police station, held for the federal authorities, charged with robbery.

The loot taken from the satchel is the remainder of the celebrated $1,000,000 robbery that startled the country by the daring of the robbers.

By a strange fate Quigley was arrested in Baltimore only a few hours after Thomas F. Benson had been indicted by the federal grand jury in New York for alleged complicity in the robbery. He was arrested while attempting to pawn jewels said to have been stolen from one of the pouches. Four pouches in all were stolen from the mail truck, two being from Boston. Nervous and peculiar actions on the part of Quigley caused his arrest. He was fidgety and was casting hurried glances about the station when the inspectors first saw him. He resembled slightly the man they were seeking. He was approached, and, startled by the action of the inspectors, started to put up a fight. The odds were against him and he was soon overpowered.

When searched at the postoffice inspectors' headquarters a heavy calibre revolver was found in Quigley's hip pocket. The satchel was then opened and the securities dumped on the desk. Quigley denied all knowledge of what the satchel contained. He said he picked it up on a train after it had been left behind by a woman. He said he was on his way to New Orleans. He had no clothing in the satchel. The majority of the securities, according to the postoffice inspectors, are from Baltimore and are negotiable. Quigley explained his presence in Baltimore by saying he desired to see the city. He had no ticket to New Orleans.

Certified Checks.

To certify a check is to write or stamp the word "good" or its equivalent on the face of the check, with the signature of the cashier or paying teller. This means that there is cash enough in the bank to meet the check and binds the bank to pay it.
